Tales from the dating game

Chicken Soup for the Soul shares heartwarming, humorous stories about looking for love and finding fairytale romance

COS COB, Conn. – Magazine reporter Amy Gray Light did not like the architect she had to interview – he was not nice to her on the phone. But when he called and apologized, things warmed up, and they even flirted! They started speaking every day and made plans to meet. “My heart did an actual flip-flop,” Amy says about the first time she saw her now-husband. As it turned out, her editor-in-chief had given her the assignment as a set-up in the first place!

You never know who or what will bring you and your soul mate together. You’ll love reading the 101 stories in Chicken Soup for the Soul: The Dating Game (Chicken Soup for the Soul Publishing, LLC, Dec. 17, 2013, 978-1611599299, $14.95) about looking for love and finding fairytale romance. From bad dates to great dates, blind dates to old friends turning into more, online dating to chance meetings, and everything in between, this collection will make you laugh, give you hope, and remind you why you love the one you’re with.

Sometimes cupid surprises you. Like when Carlton Hughes, a young college professor, went grocery shopping and bumped into his shyest student, who turned out to be a matchmaker. At his urging, Carlton called his sister, and the rest, as they say, is history. “For me,” Carlton writes, “Cupid appeared in the form of a quiet young man in the frozen foods section of a grocery store, with a photo of a lovely lady.”

Other times, couples are brought together by chance. On the flight home from a Club Med vacation, Liane Kupferberg Carter sat next to a man she had met briefly while at the resort and dubbed “Cute Guy.” The attraction seemed one-sided until they started talking about books and it sparked a deeper conversation and interest. About two weeks later, he asked her to marry him. Another fairy tale ending!

Everyone loves a good romance or a love story with a happy ending. This collection of modern-day fairy tales makes a great gift for someone who is looking for love or for someone who has already found it. What a wonderful way to satisfy the romantic in all of us.
