

Chicken Soup for the Soul Entertainment Announces Production of New Series The Fixer

The First of Two New Series to Be Executive Produced by Ashton Kutcher

Lead Sponsors Include Acorns and Handy.com

COS COB, CT – July 18, 2018 – Chicken Soup for the Soul Entertainment, Inc. (“CSS Entertainment”) (Nasdaq: CSSE), a growing media company with online video on-demand (“VOD”) networks that provide positive and entertaining video content for all screens, today announced the production launch of its new series The Fixer, which will be executive produced by actor and investor Ashton Kutcher. The show is aimed at helping millennials overcome their financial struggles and the issues that cause them.

Following CSS Entertainment’s business model of signing sponsorships prior to producing a series, The Fixer will have several lead sponsors, including Acorns and Handy.com. The Fixer is the first CSS Entertainment series to have multiple major sponsors. In another first, two of these sponsors are also portfolio companies of Sound Ventures, Kutcher’s venture fund. “Incorporating some of my portfolio companies into a TV series and creating short-form video to accompany the series is a great marketing tool for these companies that is organic and has massive reach,” said Kutcher.

A show like The Fixer is extremely topical and relevant in today’s economy. Kutcher noted there are over 44 million Americans today with student debt totaling over $1.4 trillion. “These millennials have just spent a fortune on their education and have to find a way to pay back their immense debts while also making a living,” he said. “Their inexperience with personal finance has led to overspending, a lack of financial planning, and a lack of knowledge that puts these kids in terrible financial situations. It is important not only to help them learn how to pay off their loans, but also to lay the groundwork for them to achieve success without being held back by legacy financial concerns.”

“We have to close the savings gap, get people investing early and often, and raise financial literacy levels,” said Noah Kerner, chief executive officer of Acorns. “Our mission at Acorns is to look after the financial best interests of the up-and-coming, so we build tools that put the power of wealth-making into everyone’s hands. We hope this show will get more people talking about these issues and introduce our solutions to anyone who can benefit from them.”

The series will consist of ten 30-minute episodes and will be hosted by Dan Rosensweig, chief executive officer of Chegg, Inc. “At Chegg, we are dedicated to helping lessen the financial burden on students and recent graduates and removing obstacles that stand in the way of their education and financial success,” Rosensweig said, noting that financial issues aren’t always black and white and can extend beyond loans and overspending. “There tend to be other underlying issues behind student’s financial problems. In the series, we dig deep to uncover the underlying issues that are impacting millions of students,” said Rosensweig.

“We are excited to begin production on The Fixer,” stated William J. Rouhana, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of CSS Entertainment. “This series gets us to 20 out of our total goal of 60 half-hours of TV episodes that we expect to create this year. This is also the first time one of our series will have multiple lead sponsors, each of which bring unique and innovative ideas to the series. Pairing millennials with a ‘fixer’ who introduces them to resources and companies that can help, like our sponsors, will provide a crash course in money management. We are aiming to lessen the burden and stress and give millennials the tools they need to take control of their lives and their finances.”

“We are thrilled to support a show like The Fixer. As the leading platform for home services such as house cleaning, with operations across the country, we believe in creating meaningful, flexible income opportunities that help our Handy professionals achieve their financial goals on their own schedules,” said Umang Dua, chief operating officer at Handy.
