Prescription for living: Spend your days with God

New Chicken Soup for the Soul release offers stories for the seeking

COS COB, Conn. – According to findings published in the November 2008 Psychology and Health Journal, individuals who attend religious services once a week are likely to live longer, lowering their risk of death by 20 percent when compared with those who do not regularly attend religious events. After reviewing the religious habits of more than 95,000 study participants, researchers observed that regardless of health threat, those regularly attending religious events were generally less susceptible to life-threatening conditions than their non-religious counterparts.

As a devout Catholic, mother, nurse, author, motivational speaker and popular Chicken Soup for the Soul® contributor, LeAnn Thieman is well familiar with both the pleasures and struggles that come with a life of faith. After co-authoring nine titles in the series, including Chicken Soup for the Christian Woman's Soul and Chicken Soup for the Christian Soul 2, she is now co-author of her most personal Chicken Soup for the Soul book to date, Chicken Soup for the Soul: Living Catholic Faith (Chicken Soup for the Soul Publishing, LLC, December 2008, 978-1-935096-23-8, $14.95), a collection of 101 stories about the Catholic experience.

With topical sections ranging from “Angels Among Us” to “The Power of Prayer,” Living Catholic Faith shares stories of the miracles, sacraments, and community that comes with a God-filled life. True to the spirit of Chicken Soup for the Soul, these stories both motivate and challenge readers.

“Whether the reader is a cradle Catholic or a convert; lay, clergy, or religious; simply curious or struggling; these stories will deepen their faith and hope in God,” says Thieman.

In her story “The Healing Power of the Family Rosary,” Living Catholic Faith contributor Cathy Kruse admits that her family members are “hardly saints, and sometimes sinners...We juggle commitments, struggle with setbacks and try to count our blessings as we work, raise our children, nurture relationships and journey in faith. Sometimes when the monthly prayer meeting rolls around, we get distracted by work, school and travel schedules. Sometimes, we’re just plain tired.”

“But we persevere because we know that regular prayer, including prayer with others, is essential to sustain our faith,” says Kruse. “Through prayer, our faith comes alive.”

Inside Chicken Soup for the Soul: Living Catholic Faith, readers will also find:

- Joan Stamm’s discovery of a white rosary as a sign that her recently deceased father was in heaven
- How a woman’s hesitation over holding hands with a homeless person at Mass taught her to love all God’s children
- A mother’s joy at receiving heartfelt thanks from her son for her sacrifice in sending him to Catholic school
- How Jennifer Harris’s deceased brother visited her while she was in intensive care after a difficult labor
